Abstracts

Powdered alcohol is alcohol that has undergone microencapsulation; turning it from a liquid into a solid (powder form). The process of microencapsulation involves coating drops of alcohol with a membrane to make them a powdered variant. The taste of this form of alcohol is somewhat off putting and some argue it has much less value than regular liquid alcohol. Food manufacturers use it as a preservative to extend the shelf life of other products. Sometimes it is used as an additive in cocktails, combined with alcohol and water.

The global Powdered Alcohol market size was estimated at USD 357.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 3.10% during the forecast period.
