The Psychological Healing Service Platform is a digital mental health service system built upon the internet, mobile applications, and artificial intelligence technologies. By integrating professional psychological knowledge, clinical experience, behavioral data, and physiological data, combined with online assessment tools, remote video counseling, intelligent chatbots, cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT) training modules, and personalized psychological healing plans, the platform provides a full-process service from psychological problem identification, intervention, follow-up, to effect evaluation. The platform not only assists mental health professionals in improving work efficiency and expanding service scope but also helps users independently adjust their mindset and manage their emotions. It is widely used in areas such as workplace stress management, adolescent psychological counseling, family relationship improvement, emotional disorder intervention, and psychological crisis intervention, serving as an important tool for promoting the digitalization, intelligentization, and sustainable development of mental health. The downstream users of the Psychological Healing Service Platform primarily include individual users, employees of enterprises and institutions, school teachers and students, community residents, and special groups requiring mental health support, such as medical personnel, military and police personnel, and those working in high-pressure industries. Downstream users access services such as psychological assessments, online consultations, cognitive behavioral therapy training, meditation and mindfulness courses, and emotion management tools through the platform to achieve self-psychological adjustment or receive professional intervention. Corporate and institutional clients can integrate the platform into their employee care systems or school mental health systems to enhance organizational resilience, reduce employee stress, and prevent mental health issues. Due to the high added value, strong professionalism, and high customer loyalty of psychological healing service platforms, their profit model typically includes subscription fees, pay-per-consultation fees, value-added courses, and customized corporate services, with a relatively high overall gross profit margin, generally around 61%.
