Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Quality Improver competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations.Quality improvers are an important category of food additives. They mainly improve the sensory and physical and chemical quality of food through mechanisms such as water retention, moisture retention, improvement of rheological properties and integration of metal ions. They are used in processing fields such as beverages, dairy products, and candies. Its chemical composition is mainly phosphates (such as sodium tripolyphosphate and sodium hexametaphosphate), which can enhance the water holding capacity of food, adjust the texture characteristics, and inhibit oxidation reactions.This type of additive has different effects in different foods: adding phosphates to beverages can complex metal ions, delay the oxidation of vitamin C and oils, and maintain the dispersion of suspended matter; in dairy products, thermal stability is improved by adjusting the balance of calcium and magnesium ions; in meat products, elasticity and tenderness are improved; in glutinous rice products such as rice dumplings, water absorption and taste are optimized.

The global Quality Improver market size was estimated at USD 28500.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 7.00% during the forecast period.
