Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Reclining Sofas competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations.A reclining sofa is a type of sofa with an adjustable backrest as its core design feature. Users can adjust the backrest angle mechanically or electrically to switch between sitting, reclining, and other multi-functional postures. Electric reclining sofas, driven by a built-in motor, automatically adjust the backrest, footrest, or seat angle. Users can control the sofa's posture via remote control, mobile app, or buttons. Some high-end models also feature massage, heating, and USB charging functions. Their core value lies in meeting users' dual needs for comfort and functionality, making them particularly suitable for family living rooms, bedrooms, studies, and commercial spaces such as hotels and offices. In 2024, global production of reclining sofas reached 24.409 million units, with an average selling price of US$825.5 per unit. The average price for a single chair was US$477.62 per unit, and for a sofa set, it was US$1342.7 per unit. The gross profit margin was approximately 20%-45%.Raw material price fluctuations: Among the many raw materials, fabrics, steel, wood, and foam are in high demand. Steel (functional iron frames) has a high technical barrier to entry, and its raw material costs account for over 80% of the total cost. Therefore, fluctuations in raw material prices directly affect the procurement costs of functional sofa manufacturers, thus impacting their profitability. Large-scale functional sofa manufacturers focus on the mid-to-high-end market: The low entry barriers in China's functional sofa industry have led to numerous brands of varying quality. Small functional sofa manufacturers are mostly concentrated in the low-end market, resulting in severe product homogenization.

The global Reclining Sofas market size was estimated at USD 20150.0 million in 2025
