Abstracts

Reseller web hosting is a business model where a company purchases a large amount of server resources from a parent hosting provider and then resells smaller hosting packages to its own clients, often under its own brand. It enables entrepreneurs and agencies to offer web hosting services without investing in infrastructure, managing hardware, or maintaining technical support systems directly. Resellers typically operate within a control panel environment provided by the parent host, allowing them to allocate resources such as disk space, bandwidth, and email accounts to end customers while the upstream provider handles server maintenance, security, and uptime. This model is popular among web designers, digital marketing agencies, and IT consultants looking to generate recurring revenue by bundling hosting with their core services.

The global Reseller Web Hosting Service market size was estimated at USD 21500.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 11.50% during the forecast period.
