Abstracts

Seafarer Training refers to a range of educational and practical training programs designed for individuals working on ships, ensuring they have the necessary skills and knowledge to operate safely and efficiently at sea. These training programs cover various aspects of maritime operations and safety regulations and are often required by international conventions, such as the STCW (Standards of Training, Certification, and Watchkeeping for Seafarers), established by the International Maritime Organization (IMO). The global seafarer training market is driven by the recovery of the shipping industry, fleet renewal, and the tightening of international regulations, particularly ongoing amendments to the STCW Convention. Demand continues to rise steadily as authorities and training centers invest in simulators and digital learning systems. Asia remains the primary growth region due to its large seafarer supply, while cross-border demand for high-quality, certified training services is expanding rapidly.

The global Seafarer Training market size was estimated at USD 3799.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.40% during the forecast period.
