Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Sleeping Fragrance competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Sleep-aiding fragrances refer to aromatic products made from natural or synthetic fragrances. They use the volatility of specific aroma components to stimulate the brain's limbic system through the olfactory system, regulate neurotransmitter secretion, relieve anxiety, reduce stress levels, and induce the body and mind to enter a state of relaxation, ultimately achieving the purpose of improving sleep efficiency, prolonging deep sleep time, and improving overall sleep quality. Its mechanism of action is based on aromatherapy and neuroscience principles, and achieves dual physiological and psychological regulation through non-drug means, becoming one of the auxiliary means for modern people to deal with sleep disorders.

The global Sleeping Fragrance market size was estimated at USD 658.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.20% during the forecast period.
