Abstracts

Solvent-based 3C coatings are a class of protective and decorative liquid coatings applied to the surfaces of consumer electronics, communication devices, and computer components, where the term "3C" refers to these three categories; these coatings utilize organic solvents as carriers for resins, pigments, and additives, forming durable, high-gloss, and chemically resistant films through solvent evaporation and cross-linking mechanisms upon curing. Characterized by excellent adhesion, hardness, and resistance to abrasion, moisture, and fingerprints, they are engineered to meet stringent aesthetic and performance demands, such as vibrant color retention, smooth texture, and protection against environmental stressors, though they face increasing regulatory and environmental scrutiny due to volatile organic compound (VOC) emissions during application and drying processes.

The global Solvent Based 3C Coating market size was estimated at USD 2500.0 million in 2024 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 3.50% during the forecast period.
