Abstracts

Step-index fiber is a type of optical fiber with a significant difference in refractive index between the core and the cladding. This structure enables optical signals to propagate efficiently in the fiber. For optical fibers, a step-index profile is a refractive index profile characterized by a uniform refractive index within the core and a sharp drop in the refractive index at the core-cladding interface, leaving the cladding with a lower refractive index. A step-index profile corresponds to a power-law refractive index profile with a profile parameter approaching infinity. Step-index profiles are used in most single-mode fibers and some multimode fibers.

The global Step Index Fiber market size was estimated at USD 1100.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 9.80% during the forecast period.
