Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Sugar-Free Soda competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Sugar-Free Soda refers to carbonated beverages that do not contain traditional natural or refined sugars such as sucrose and glucose, but use sugar substitutes (sweeteners) to provide sweetness. Its core goal is to reduce or eliminate the calorie intake brought by sugar while retaining the sweet taste of soda. It is usually suitable for people who control sugar, diabetics, fitness enthusiasts or consumers who pursue a low-calorie diet. The younger generation of consumers has become the main force driving the growth of the sugar-free soda market. They prefer to choose low-sugar or sugar-free beverages to reduce sugar intake, and under the influence of social media and online platforms, the demand for low-sugar and healthy drinks is increasing. Data shows that between 2025 and 2030, the purchase frequency of sugar-free soda by young Chinese consumers will increase from an average of 1.5 times per month to an average of 3 times per month, indicating that their preference for sugar-free soda is gradually increasing. In order to meet the increasingly diverse taste needs of consumers, the sugar-free soda industry continues to launch new flavor products, such as sugar-free soda with unique flavors such as fruity and floral flavors. In addition to flavor innovation, packaging design has also become more diversified, and the addition of functional ingredients has also become a trend, such as adding natural sweeteners, plant ingredients, dietary fiber or vitamins, etc., to provide additional health benefits and attract more consumers. The rapid development of emerging channels such as e-commerce and community group buying has provided more possibilities for the sales of sugar-free soda, and the proportion of online sales has increased year by year. The demand for high-end sugar-free soda among urban residents, especially the middle class in second- and third-tier cities, is gradually increasing, and this group of people is willing to pay a premium for quality and service. Therefore, the development of high-end product lines and the construction of online and offline integrated experience stores are crucial. Some brands will create a high-end product image by using better raw materials, unique formulas and exquisite packaging.

The global Sugar-Free Soda market size was estimated at USD 5629.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 9.60% during the forecast period.
