Abstracts

Tableside Ordering System is a catering service technology solution that integrates hardware and software. By deploying terminal devices at the table or relying on wireless connection technology, it enables the entire process of customer ordering, dish information query and order submission to be digitalized. It also supports waiters to assist in ordering, optimizing restaurant service efficiency and customer experience.IoT technology enables tableside ordering systems to monitor inventory status in real time, optimize supply chain management, and update inventory in real time to avoid customers ordering out-of-stock dishes. Contactless payment methods continue to gain popularity, such as NFC and mobile wallets, providing a faster and safer payment experience. At the same time, emerging payment technologies such as blockchain and cryptocurrency are also beginning to emerge in the catering industry, which is expected to provide higher transparency and security for transactions. Chain restaurants will adopt tableside ordering systems more widely to achieve standardized operations and management. High-end dining venues will use the system's personalized recommendations and customized interfaces to provide customers with a better service experience and enhance their brand image. Hotel restaurants, bars, room service and other scenarios will increasingly use tableside ordering systems to facilitate guests to order and consume in different places, and improve the overall service level of the hotel. Fast food and casual dining brands are also gradually introducing tableside ordering systems to improve service efficiency, meet consumers' demand for fast and convenient services, and enhance customers' dining experience.

The global Tableside Ordering System market size was estimated at USD 14524.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 11.40% during the forecast period.
