Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Tapioca Sago competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Global Tapioca Sago sales reached 1.3 million tons in 2024, with an average selling price of US$1,451/ton. Sago is a type of starch typically extracted from the Metoxylon sago palm tree. Currently, over 90% of sago (in the form of pearl balls or agar-agar granules) is actually made from cassava starch. Therefore, its supply chain consists of three stages: "cassava cultivation ? cassava starch ? pearl/sago products," and can be considered an extension of the cassava starch industry chain. Tapioca is the raw material of upstream production, with Thailand, Vietnam, Indonesia, and Laos accounting for 75% of production. In China, Guangxi, Guangdong, Hainan, and Yunnan provinces will have a planted area of ??280,000 hectares in 2025, producing approximately 2 million tons (fresh cassava), accounting for only 45% of domestic starch mill demand. The gap will be filled by imported dried cassava and starch. Cost Structure: Fresh cassava ex-factory price is 450-550 yuan/ton, flour yield is 4.2:1, and raw materials account for 55-60% of starch costs.

The global Tapioca Sago market size was estimated at USD 1888.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.40% during the forecast period.
