Abstracts

The development of the data center service market can be divided into three stages, namely, hosting, Internet data center and cloud data computing. In the hosting stage, telecom operators provide customers with hosting and maintenance services for basic resources and facilities. In the second stage, in addition to providing hosting services, data center service providers also provide data storage management, security management, network interconnection, and network selection services for export bandwidth. With the popularity of cloud computing and virtualization technologies, data center service providers have begun to build "new generation" cloud computing data centers. The advantages of third-party IDC service providers over basic telecom operators include streamlined processes and higher levels of customization, as well as greater flexibility and freedom from restrictions on a single communications network or region.

The global Third-party Data Center Services market size was estimated at USD 21971.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 18.90% during the forecast period.

This report offers a comprehensive and in-depth analysis of the global Third-party Data Center Services market, covering all critical facets from a broad macroeconomic overview to detailed micro-level insights.
