Abstracts

Plant-based chicken nuggets are chicken nuggets substitutes made with plant protein as the main raw material. The main raw materials of plant-based chicken nuggets are various plant proteins, such as soy protein, wheat protein, pea protein, and even nutritious microalgae such as spirulina. These raw materials are processed to form a taste and texture similar to chicken. The production process of plant-based chicken nuggets usually includes multiple steps such as raw material soaking, shredding, seasoning, stirring, and shaping. These steps use physical and chemical methods to convert plant protein into a texture and taste similar to chicken. Among them, shaping is usually achieved by physical extrusion, and there is no need to use food additives to increase the viscosity of the raw materials.
