Abstracts

A vet house call refers to a veterinarian visiting a pet owner's home to provide medical care or services for their pet, rather than the pet owner taking their pet to a veterinary clinic or hospital. During a vet house call, a veterinarian will perform a physical exam, offer preventive care, administer necessary treatments, and/or administer vaccines at the pet owner's home. Vet house calls can offer a more convenient option for pet owners who have difficulty transporting their pets to a clinic, or for pets who experience anxiety in a clinic setting. It can also be beneficial for pets that are too sick or injured to be transported, or for pet owners who prefer personalized care in the comfort of their own home. Some veterinary clinics and practices offer vet house call services as part of their offerings. Pet medical care is the second largest segment in pet industry. In the UK, annual spending on veterinary and other pet services has risen from ?2.6bn in 2015 to ?4bn in 2021, a 54% increase in just six years. According to Vetnosis, the value of the global animal health industry will increase by 12% to $38.3 billion in 2021. White Paper on China's Pet Healthy Consumption of JD shows that in 2023, there are 13.09 million pets entering middle age and old age. And pet aging is expected to be seen in the next few years. Changes in the age structure of pets will further bring about the development of the pet medical industry. According to the data of the 2022 China Pet Medical Industry White Paper, from the perspective of market size, the scale of China's pet medical market is about ?67.5 billion, accounting for about 22.5% of the entire pet industry. From the perspective of hospital operation time, pet hospitals within 5 years accounted for about 73%. About 11% of the pet hospitals have been in operation for more than 10 years. From the perspective of hospital turnover, nearly 40% of the hospitals have increased their annual turnover year-on-year, and the growth rate is mainly within 70%.

The global Vet House Call market size was estimated at USD 658.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 8.10% during the forecast period.
