Abstracts

The 2025 U.S. tariff policies introduce profound uncertainty into the global economic landscape. This report critically examines the implications of recent tariff adjustments and international strategic countermeasures on Water-based Setting Spray competitive dynamics, regional economic interdependencies, and supply chain reconfigurations. Water - based setting spray is a cosmetic product designed to hold hairstyles in place and enhance the texture and appearance of hair. As the name suggests, its main solvent is water, which makes it a relatively light and non - greasy option compared to some other types of setting sprays. It typically contains a mixture of water, polymers, and other additives. The polymers form a fine, invisible film on the hair shafts when the spray dries, which helps to keep the hair in the desired style, whether it's a sleek straight look, soft waves, or voluminous curls. Additionally, water - based setting sprays may also include ingredients like glycerin to add moisture to the hair, preventing it from becoming dry and brittle during the day.

The global Water-based Setting Spray market size was estimated at USD 425.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 5.20% during the forecast period.
