Report Overview

Green Pepper Essential Oil is a concentrated aromatic compound extracted from the green berries of the Piper nigrum plant, which is native to South India. This oil is known for its fresh, pungent, and slightly sweet aroma, reminiscent of the green pepper fruit. It is obtained through a process called steam distillation, where the green pepper berries are subjected to high heat to release their volatile compounds. These compounds are then condensed and collected as an oil. Green Pepper Essential Oil is valued for its potential therapeutic properties, which may include anti-inflammatory, analgesic, and antioxidant effects. It is often used in aromatherapy for its invigorating and uplifting scent, and can also be incorporated into skincare products, massage oils, and culinary applications for flavor enhancement.
