Report Overview

Injectable Demineralized Bone Matrix (DBM) Paste is a biologic material used in orthopedic and dental procedures, particularly in bone grafting applications. It is derived from natural bone sources, which are processed to remove organic components, leaving behind a collagen-rich matrix that facilitates bone regeneration. The paste form of DBM allows for easy application and molding at the surgical site, providing a scaffold for bone growth and integration. Injectable DBM Paste is often used in spinal fusion surgeries, dental implant placements, and other bone repair procedures to promote healing and restore bone structure. Its key benefits include osteoconductive properties, which guide bone growth, and osteoinductive capabilities, which stimulate the body's own bone-forming cells to produce new bone tissue.
