Report Overview

Demi-fine jewelry refers to pieces that sit between fine jewelry and costume or fashion jewelry in terms of quality and price. It typically features higher quality materials such as sterling silver, gold vermeil (gold-plated sterling silver), semi-precious gemstones, and occasionally small diamonds or other precious stones. While demi-fine jewelry is not as expensive as fine jewelry, which often features solid gold or platinum and higher quality gemstones, it is generally of better quality and durability compared to fashion jewelry. Demi-fine jewelry offers a middle ground, providing stylish designs and higher-quality materials at a more accessible price point than traditional fine jewelry.
