Report Overview

Marinated Salmon refers to a culinary preparation of salmon fish that has been soaked in a flavorful liquid mixture, known as marinade, prior to cooking. This process enhances the flavor, tenderizes the fish, and can also help to preserve it for a short period. The marinade typically consists of a combination of ingredients such as herbs, spices, vinegar, lemon juice, oil, and sometimes wine or other liquids. The salmon is left to absorb these flavors for a certain period, ranging from a few hours to overnight, depending on the desired intensity of taste.
