Abstracts

The online legal services market covers a wide range of services, from online legal advice to court representation related to legal disputes. Individuals, businesses and other organizations expect to be able to obtain legal services outside of traditional office hours, which will bring new demands to the legal services market. Do-it-yourself (DIY) online solutions already exist in some legal fields, such as divorce and will writing. Such services may expand to other legal fields, especially those affected by changes in legal aid funding. Many lawyers believe that the development of online services is one of the most important factors in helping them grow their business. A survey of businesses abroad showed that the use of online legal services may increase from 28% to 37% in the next five years. In another survey, 40% of consumers said they were interested in the convenience and low cost of online legal services. Using divorce as a case study, recent research has attempted to understand whether the method of providing legal services (i.e., face-to-face or online) affects the consumer experience. The study found no evidence that consumers of online services received worse results. Therefore, in the long run, online legal services businesses can provide legal services to market demanders more conveniently and flexibly while meeting consumer expectations.

The global Online Legal Services market size was estimated at USD 833.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 9.20% during the forecast period.
