Report Overview

A Personal Loan is a type of unsecured financial product offered by banks, credit unions, and other financial institutions to individuals for various personal needs. It is characterized by its flexibility, allowing borrowers to use the funds for a wide range of purposes, such as debt consolidation, home improvements, or major purchases. Personal loans typically involve a fixed interest rate and a set repayment term, which can range from a few months to several years. The loan amount, interest rate, and repayment terms are determined based on the borrower's creditworthiness, income, and other financial factors. Unlike secured loans, personal loans do not require collateral, making them accessible to a broader range of consumers. However, this also means that the interest rates may be higher than those for secured loans due to the increased risk for the lender.

In 2024, the global Personal Loans market is projected to reach approximately USD xx Million, with expectations to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of around xx between 2024 and 2033.
