Report Overview

The reverse mortgage market provides homeowners aged 62 and older with a financial solution that allows them to convert a portion of their home equity into tax-free cash without requiring monthly mortgage payments. These loans, insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) under the Home Equity Conversion Mortgage (HECM) program, are typically repaid when the borrower sells the home, moves out permanently, or passes away. The market has grown steadily due to an aging population, rising home values, and increased consumer awareness, though it remains regulated to protect seniors from predatory lending practices. Demand is influenced by economic conditions, interest rates, and housing market trends, with lenders competing on loan terms, fees, and customer service.
