Report Overview

The self-inflating mattress is an innovative outdoor sleeping solution designed to combine the convenience of air mattresses with the comfort and insulation of foam padding. These mattresses feature an open-cell foam core that expands when the valve is opened, drawing in air automatically, while manual inflation may be required to achieve optimal firmness. Unlike traditional air mattresses, self-inflating models provide better insulation, portability, and durability, making them popular among campers, backpackers, and outdoor enthusiasts. They vary in thickness, size, and material quality, catering to different needs from ultralight backpacking to car camping.
