Abstracts

Special steel wire rope refers to special steel wire rope specially used in specific environment or field or important steel wire rope with high use requirements and complex use environment. Standard ropes often do not meet the high requirements of many applications of wire ropes. Higher demands for rope lifetime, breaking strengths, rotational stability, flexibility, structural stability and spooling behavior can only be fulfilled by special wire ropes. It is for these reasons that many engineers and end users resort to special steel wire rope. Government spending on the construction sector is enormous. There are many new government initiatives related to the construction sector, including initiatives to build new roads and bridges. The use of steel wire has grown with the construction of suspension bridges to improve infrastructure and connectivity. The roadway is supported by suspended steel cables and any load applied to the bridge causes stress on the steel cables. Because of their high tensile strength, flexibility, toughness under adverse conditions, and high resilience, these wires are used in suspension bridge cables. Steel wire is crucial for the production of viaducts, slabs, aqueducts, silos, suspensions, skyscrapers, river domes, railways, and nuclear reactors, as well as for the construction of railway sleepers and high-rise buildings. The demand for steel wire for these applications is likely to increase during the forecast period.

The global Special Steel Wire Rope market size was estimated at USD 484.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 4.10% during the forecast period.
