Report Overview

Tedizolid Phosphate for Injection is a pharmaceutical product designed for intravenous administration. It is a prodrug of tedizolid, a novel antibiotic belonging to the oxazolidinone class, which is used to treat bacterial infections. Tedizolid phosphate is formulated as a sterile, lyophilized powder intended for reconstitution with a compatible diluent before injection. The product is specifically indicated for the treatment of acute bacterial skin and skin structure infections (ABSSSI) caused by susceptible Gram-positive bacteria. Its mechanism of action involves inhibiting bacterial protein synthesis by binding to the 50S ribosomal subunit, thereby disrupting the translation process and halting bacterial growth. Tedizolid phosphate's use is subject to physician prescription and patient-specific considerations, and it is part of a broader class of antibiotics that target a specific range of pathogens, offering an alternative to other treatment options in the management of serious skin infections.
