Report Overview

Tert-Butyl Monoperoxymaleate, also known as TBPM, is a chemical compound that serves as a catalyst and initiator in various polymerization reactions. It is a derivative of maleic anhydride, where one of the double bonds is replaced by a peroxy group, and a tert-butyl group is attached to the remaining double bond. TBPM is a colorless to pale yellow liquid with a molecular formula of $C_8H_{12}O_4$. It is commonly used in the production of polymers, particularly in the synthesis of polyethylene and other plastics. The tert-butyl group provides stability to the peroxy group, making TBPM a more efficient and safer initiator compared to other peroxides. Its controlled decomposition at elevated temperatures allows for precise control over the polymerization process, ensuring the desired molecular weight and structure of the resulting polymer.

In 2024, the global Tert-Butyl Monoperoxymaleate market is projected to reach approximately USD xx Million, with expectations to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of around xx between 2024 and 2033.
