Abstracts

To address the challenges of ensuring meals during film and television location shooting, including high food safety risks and low efficiency in large-scale meal services, film and television location catering services have emerged. Since the late 20th century, with the accelerated industrialization of the film and television industry, the logistics support for film crews has gradually become more professional and standardized. Currently, film and television location catering services have developed into a professional support system integrating mobile kitchens, cold chain delivery, on-site heating, and customized meal options. It is widely used in film production, television drama production, variety show recording, and large-scale advertising shoots, efficiently completing centralized meal supply tasks across different shooting cycles and geographical environments. This significantly improves the operational efficiency of film crews, protects personnel health, and optimizes on-site management processes. The TV and Film Location Catering Service market is experiencing a growing trend, with an increasing demand for high-quality catering services on set. Major sales regions for this market include North America, Europe, and Asia Pacific, where the entertainment industry is thriving. Market concentration is high, with a few key players dominating the market and setting industry standards. However, there are also opportunities for smaller catering companies to enter the market and provide specialized services to niche segments. Challenges in this market include meeting the unique dietary needs of cast and crew members, as well as ensuring food safety and quality standards are met on location. Overall, the TV and Film Location Catering Service market is poised for continued growth as the entertainment industry expands globally.

The global TV and Film Location Catering Service market size was estimated at USD 940.0 million in 2025 and is projected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.20% during the forecast period.

This report offers a comprehensive and in-depth analysis of the global TV and Film Location Catering Service market, covering all critical facets from a broad macroeconomic overview to detailed micro-level insights. It examines market size, competitive landscape, emerging development trends, niche segments, key drivers and challenges, as well as conducts SWOT and value chain analyses.
