Abstracts

Osteopenia and osteoporosis ("porous bone") are both terms which help to define the continuum of loss of bone density which leads to bone fragility and an increased risk of fractures of the hip, spine and wrist.

Loss of bone density is characterised by too little bone formation, excessive bone loss or a combination of both, typically as a result of hormonal changes, or deficiency of calcium or vitamin D.

Both osteopenia and osteoporosis remain largely under diagnosed because of their asymptomatic nature, especially in the less severe stages of bone loss.

This report provides the current prevalent population for Osteopenia and Osteoporosis across 13 Major Markets (USA, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Spain, UK, Brazil, Japan, India, China, Russia and Australia) split by gender and 5-year age cohort. Along with the current prevalence, the report also contains a disease overview of the risk factors, disease diagnosis and prognosis along with specific variations by geography and ethnicity.

Providing a value-added level of insight from the analysis team at Black Swan, several of the main symptoms and co-morbidities of Osteopenia and Osteoporosis have been quantified and presented alongside the overall prevalence figures. These subpopulations within the main disease are also included at a country level across the 10-year forecast snapshot.

The following conditions and comorbidities are associated with loss of bone mineral density:

Back pain
Hypertension
Diabetes
Osteoarthritis
RA
COPD
CKD
Asthma
Hyperlipidaemia
Hyperthyroidism
Cushing's syndrome
Pituitary disease
Multiple myeloma
Thalassaemia major
AIDS/HIV
Bone fractures (particularly in the spine or hip)

This report is built using data and information sourced from the proprietary Epiomic patient segmentation database. To generate accurate patient population estimates, the Epiomic database utilises a combination of several world class sources that deliver the most up to date information form patient registries, clinical trials and epidemiology studies. All of the sources used to generate the data and analysis have been identified in the report.
