BMI View: Improving labour market conditions and high disposable incomes will drive domestic demand in the economy, leading to growth of 7.5% in vehicle sales in 2016.

Key Views

Improving consumer confidence will help drive growth in private consumption and fuel growth in the passenger vehicle segment.

Low levels of inflation will free up disposable income. Record low interest rates will translate to lower borrowing costs for households and business and bolster auto loan growth.

Transport infrastructure projects will benefit the commercial vehicle segment.
