BMI View: India's tourism market will continue to grow and expand in the next five years as the number of arrivals is set to increase steadily and, simultaneously, the country's economy will increase the Indian middle and upper travelling classes. To accommodate this increase, the government is setting up policies that aim at not only improving and developing tourism infrastructure, creating new opportunities for investment, but also expanding the offers (including golf, adventure travels, spiritual travels), thus expanding tourism to more rural areas.

Key Updates And Forecasts

The number of flight routes connecting India's main cities to other international airports is constantly increasing. Between October 2015 and January 2016 alone, the following companies launched new routes: Air Canada to Toronto, Shandong Airlines to Kunming, Spicejet to varied destinations, Air India to San Francisco, London and Dubai, Qatar Airways to Doha, and TigerAir to Singapore.
