BMI View: The Malaysia Retail Chain Association's (MRCA) latest assessment of the growth prospects for 2016 support our view that the country's retail sales will recover in 2016 as the initial impact of the Goods and Services Tax moderates, supported by sustained economic growth, rising household incomes and accommodative monetary policy. The national bank's view that inflation will moderate across the remainder of the year and expectations of further ringgit appreciation against the US dollar will also have the capacity to improve overall sales performance. However, the country's precipitous household debt levels still pose a downside risk to our forecasts, especially over the medium term.

Latest Updates & Developments
