BMI View: BMI believes that Poland will spend up to US$7.5bn on defence during 2014. This will be a reduction from 2013 when the country's defence budget totalled US$7.6bn. We expect Polish defence spending to increase significantly throughout the remainder of the forecast period up to 2018 with the country spending on average US$8.2bn on defence annually.

BMI has given Poland an overall security risk rating of 92 for Q314 forecast period. We consider that Poland has a low risk of becoming involved in any major interstate conflict. Moreover, we consider that the country is unlikely to suffer any major terrorist attack, although we do note that the country is notably more susceptible to criminal activity.
