BMI View: BMI's Q2 2014 Sweden Metals report examines the trends within the country's steel and aluminium sectors and assesses the challenges facing the industry's key players as they look to recover from the downturn in metal demand and prices over the past few years.

Demand for steel and other industrial metals will continue to remain subdued over the short term which is largely the result of a weaker-than-expected eurozone recovery. Moderate levels of consumption from the automotive and construction sectors will have a knock-on effect for both demand and prices for steel and other industrial metals. The Sweden metals Q2 2014 report also examines how producers are responding to volatile market conditions and examines trends. The report also analyses the growth and risk management strategies being employed by the leading players in the steel and aluminium sectors, as they seek to maximise the growth opportunities in niche markets, such as energy plants.
