Abstracts

The Executive Summary of Global Market of Yellow Phosphorus is from CCM's report Global Market of Yellow Phosphorus (The Third Edition), which is finished in July 2014.

Phosphate is crucial to human beings because of its feature of being non-renewable and the great importance of phosphate fertilizer in agricultural production. Thus, phosphorus resources are attracting more and more attention in the world. In order to protect phosphorus resources, some countries in the world have restricted the production and export of yellow phosphorus. Still, some countries are encouraging the production and export of the product, some even inviting foreigners to explore their domestic phosphorus resources.

Though the production of yellow phosphorus faces overcapacity in the world at present, it's still uneasy for end users to obtain it. It's more interesting that it's difficult for some countries to get yellow phosphorus while some other are involved in anti-dumping cases for the product.

The global consumption of yellow phosphorus is distributed in the major production countries and major importers. Thermal phosphoric acid still takes the largest share in the global total consumption of yellow phosphorus, while phosphorus trichloride is playing a more and more important role.

In this summary, overview of production, consumption, import and export of yellow phosphorus large players of yellow phosphorus in the world is introduced. At the same time, an outlook of global yellow phosphorus is also shown to readers. Furthermore, readers can also learn about the dynamics of major producers of yellow phosphorus in the world.

Through the summary, readers can easily have an overall impression of the latest market of yellow phosphorus in the world and follow the development direction of the global yellow phosphorus industry.
