Key findings (Word) + Trade analysis (Excel)

Imidacloprid is quite a new neonicotinoid insecticide. It is currently used in agriculture to control insects like rice hoppers, aphids thrips and white flies. It can also be used to kill soil insects like termites and some biting insects such as rice water weevil and Colorado beetle.

Chinese imidacloprid is widely exported to many countries in the world, with export price decreasing greatly in 2008 due to the global financial crisis.

From this report, you can get the following information about imidacloprid:

- Production situation of major imidacloprid manufacturers in China in 2009;
- Price change in recent years and the influencing factors;
- Export situation of imidacloprid in China in 2008 - Apr. 2009.
