Abstracts

Phosphorus pentasulfide and phosphorus pentoxide are not the main downstream products of yellow phosphorus industry in China.

In 2012, markets of phosphorus pentasulfide and phosphorus pentoxide are maintaining a flat trend, and most of the manufacturers are producing their products according to the orders because these two products are difficult to store. There are mainly 17 manufacturers in phosphorus pentasulfide industry and about 26 manufacturers in phosphorus pentoxide industry in China. What are the production features of these two industries in China? Which are the top ten manufacturers of phosphorus pentasulfide and phosphorus pentoxide industries separately? In this report, we will show you an insightful analysis on the production situation of these two products.

As phosphorus pentasulfide is one of the dangerous chemicals for exports in China, only a few large companies can obtain the national approval and finally export a small volume. Which domestic companies can export the products themselves? Compared with phosphorus pentasulfide, about 10% of the phosphorus pentoxide output in China is exported to foreign countries and there are two major exporters in China that accounted for about 40% of the total export volume. What are these two major exporters in China and how is the current export situation of phosphorus pentoxide? What are the main export destinations of phosphorus pentoxide?

There were mainly four uses of phosphorus pentasulfide and three of phosphorus pentoxide in China in 2012. What are they and which kinds are more likely to have remarkable prospect for the investment in future?

In order to dig out more opaque information about China's phosphorus pentasulfide and phosphorus pentoxide markets and find out more opportunities, CCM has conducted this deep research. The findings are presented based on CCM's insights, and accompanied by discussion with related experts. The report features the following highlights:
