Abstracts

Due to the underdevelopment of mint planting industry, China's menthol raw materials are basically imported from India, and then further processed. In recent years, with the increasing demand for menthol at home and abroad, the capacity of menthol in China had increased. In the coming two years, the menthol market will show an upward trend. Participants in the menthol industry need to understand the changes in market dynamics.

Since 2017, due to the impact of Indian raw material output and market prices, the price of menthol in China has fluctuated greatly, and its output has also been unstable. In 2018, due to the impact of Indian raw materials, domestic menthol production has decreased significantly.

Aiming to study the current menthol industry in China and forecasts the market to 2022, this report provides detailed analysis on the factors influencing the development of menthol industry in China, as well as current and historic trend of this industry. Market drivers and restraints can be found in this report.
