Abstracts

The Executive Summary of PVPP is from CCM's report named Production and Market of Polyvinylpyrrolidone in China, which is finished in October 2014.

At present, PVPP as an excellent stabilizer is mainly used by many large-scaled beer producers in China. Along with the development of the application research of pharmaceutical adjuvants in China, the application of PVPP, a new pharmaceutical excipient which plays an important role in a gentia area, has been developing in pharmaceutical industry in China (mainly used as a disintegrant in troche). With good disintegrant ability, PVPP is attracting more and more attention from pharmaceutical industry at home and abroad.

The production of PVPP in China has witnessed slow growth in recent years, with the output's CAGR less than 1% during 2009 to 2013. The capacity has seen different changes, and the producers' situation and downstream industries development trends are also provided.

What are those changes? What is the consumption development of PVPP in China? Where is the PVPP industry going? What are the decisive factors for its future development? The Executive Summary of PVPP briefs you an overview over the PVPP in China and gives you a general outlook of the industry.

The analysis of the semi-annual report of the 21 listed pesticide enterprises presented their performance in H1 2014, which will give a clear sign for the complex situation in 2014 in China.
