Abstracts

Compared with other types of vitamins, biotin is a small product by volume. The total output of biotin in the world is estimated to be 100 tonnes per year.

As the largest biotin production country, China has accounted for nearly 80.0% of the global biotin supply. Meanwhile, after years of development, China's biotin production technology in China has been the most advanced in the world.

This report looks into the development history, production, import/export, consumption, technology innovation and the benchmarking of biotin in China. Meanwhile, this report also researches the supply situation and price trend of raw materials involved in biotin production. Based on in-depth investigation, CCM forecasts the production and demand of biotin in China to 2013.

With this report, you can not only find the main players, the raw material supply situation and their price trend, but also the current biotin production technology situation of China's producers, and their production cost in China,.

Biotin trade and consumption are also covered in this report. In these parts, you can find out the main export destinations of Chinese biotin, and the biotin consumption pattern in China, as well as the main end users.

What's more, all the four biotin producers in China are profiled with in-depth analysis.
