Abstracts

Quinolinic acid is an important fine chemical raw material to produce pharmaceuticals and pesticides. Driven by domestic and overseas demand, the production of quinolinic acid has steadily developed in recent years.

As of 2011, there are 19 active producers in China, and four producers stop producing quinolinic acid. How much are the output and capacity of quinolinic acid of active producers in China in 2011? What are the reasons for the stopped production of quinolinic acid in China?

In China, quinolinic acid market has been greatly influenced by financial and debt crisis since 2008, so how does the market change in 2010-2011 in China? What are the market drivers or barriers of quinolinic acid in China?

In the past two years, quinolinic acid consumption steadily grows in China. Quinolinic acid is mainly used in the production of imazapyr, nicotinic acid, 4,7-dichloroquinoline, quinolinic anhydride and intermediates of moxifloxacin. How about the detailed consumption situation of quinolinic acid in each downstream product in China in 2011?

In this report, it will give the answers to the above questions and show the truth to penetrate into China's quinolinic acid market. Besides, other points in China's quinolinic acid industry are covered:
