Abstracts

This executive summary is extracted from CCM's report Research on Creatine Production in China Market finished in August 2015.

China is a highly potential market of creatine. Price advantage has helped it gain an important foothold in the global market, and the domestic production has been attracting more and more attention.

Since 2013, capacity and output of the product has been stable, without large increase. The past few years have also witnessed a production expansion from the existing dominant production base, eastern regions, to the west part of the country, where producers of lime nitrogen are largely gathering there. Production launch in the western region have increased the supply and industry competition as well as brought down the product price.

What is the current pattern of creatine production in China? How producers in the east and the west perform generally? How about the price changed in the past few years and general trend in the short-term future? These aspects will be shown in this executive summary.
