Abstracts

Welcome to the June Issue of Seed China News.

This report will help you stay ahead of the game in this fast-changing market with real-time reporting on the entire seed industry chain, from new research to fluctuations in the grain markets.

Here is the Editor's Note for you to know about the June issue specifically:

MOA issued the Notice of Unremitting efforts in Summer Grain Production to Achieve Annual Grain Harvest, requiring local governments to attach importance to grain harvest of the year, guarantee the yield of above 650 million tonnes, and seize the initiative of the annual grain harvest.

Summer corn sowing is about to start in an all-round way. According to the forecast of the meteorological department, in the first ten days of June, there are high temperature and low precipitation in the Huang-Huai-Hai Region, possibly leading to drought in some parts, which will be unfavorable to the sowing and emergence of summer corn. In view of the current meteorological conditions and production situation, the NATESC has formulated technical opinions on summer corn production in Huang-Huai-Hai Region.

In late May, Ningxia Department of Science and Technology and the Department of Agriculture and Rural Affairs jointly issued the Action Plan for Scientific and Technological Innovation of Seed Industry in Ningxia Autonomous Region, striving to significantly improve the scientific and technological innovation ability and level of seed industry in Ningxia by 2030, and greatly enhance the competitiveness of seed industry.
