This iDRD (Insight-based Data-Rich Deliverable) is part of the Government and Federal Government subscriptions. This report takes a look at the primary wireless-related opportunities that are available within the Department of Homeland Security. Included in this report is a look at the primary DHS objectives and the corresponding opportunities, a look at the spending opportunity, and an overall evaluation of vendor opportunities within and around wireless services and solutions. Government includes all entities including federal, state, and local government offices, agencies, and departments. Federal government includes all United States federal departments, agencies, and offices. The expert guide for this deliverable is Stephanie Atkinson. Forecasts included in this report range from 2005 to 2010 and include annual growth rates and commentary on the compound annual growth rate.

Sources: Compass Intelligence's segment and market forecasts, which include business expenditures, market demographics, and usage and adoption statistics are built using multiple sources, including proprietary Compass Intelligence research. These sources include, but are not limited to, secondary research, government data and statistics (e.g. Department of Commerce, Federal Communication Commission, Bureau of Labor Statistics and US Census Bureau), primary research, vendor-based research and in-depth interviews with key decision-makers, where relevant. Compass Intelligence selects data sources to provide greatest degree of perspective on each market or segment, in addition to the highest level of data accuracy, stability, and consistency over time.
