EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Cardiovascular disease (CVD) is a term that is used for describing conditions that have a direct negative effect on the functioning of the heart. Coronary artery diseases (CAD) is a major sub group of CVD. CAD is caused by the build up of fatty deposits on the walls of the arteries and may further develop into acute myocardial infarct (also known as Heart Attack). Percutaneous Transluminal Coronary Angioplasty (PTCA) balloon catheters, coronary guidewires and coronary stents are the devices that play a vital part in the treatment of CAD.

Coronary stent is a small mesh tube that holds the arteries and lowers the risks of the arteries re- narrowing. Thereby, lowering the risk of heart attack.

The global coronary stents market is split on the basis of product type, deployment and end user. On the basis of product type, the market can be further split into Drug Eluting Coronary Stents, Bare Metal Coronary Stents and Bioresorbable Coronary Stents. On the basis of deployment, the market is bifurcated into Balloon Expandable Coronary Stents and Self Expandable Coronary Stents. On the basis of end users, the market is split into hospitals, specialty clinics and ambulatory surgical centers.

The global coronary stents market is forecasted to grow at a healthy rate during the forecast period (2019-2023). The market is supported by various growth drivers such as rise in geriatric population, increase in diabetic population, rising prevalence of obesity, lack of physical activity and rapidly changing lifestyle. High cost of coronary stents and the stringent approval process to make these stents available for commercial use are some of the tough challenges faced by the market.
