EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Tourism is a gigantic industry with different components working together such as, travel agents, tour operators, transport providers etc. Tour operators is the organization which accumulated different components from suppliers in order to make a tour package. The prices of individual tour package is defined by the organization itself.

Basic role of any tour operator is to provide services like, accommodation, accessibility, transportation etc. to its customers in a form of package deal. The services of a tour operator reach to the customer through various distribution channels to the customer. These distribution channels can be offline as well as online. The offline distribution channels include brand website, email, mobile, internet booking engine, social media and online travel agents. On the other hand, offline distribution channels consist of retail travel agents, franchise offices of tour operators and handling agents.

The global online tour operator market is expected to grow at a healthy rate during the forecast period (2018-2022). The growth is expected on account of many factors, such as an increase in disposable income, rising car sales, increasing international inbound and outbound tourism and aging demography.

However, the market also faces some challenges, which includes increase in the number of terror attacks, heavy taxes imposed on the tour operators and seasonality dependence. Digital travel, evolution of eco-tourism and rise of adventure tourism are some of the latest trends in the global online tour operator market.
