Gemcabene is a peroxisome proliferation-activated receptor (PPAR?) agonist, under development as a once-daily, oral therapy for the treatment of dyslipidemia. In May 2020, NeuroBo Pharmaceuticals announced that it received written communication from the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) that the clinical development program for Gemcabene remains on partial clinical hold. In January 2016, the Gemcabene phase II clinical study was placed on partial clinical hold as the FDA requested 2-year rat and mouse carcinogenicity studies to be completed and submitted. In May 2018, the company submitted the requested data to the FDA, which the Agency determined was insufficient to lift the partial clinical hold at that time. On April 20, 2020, the company filed an amendment to the FDA's partial clinical hold letter received in June 2018.
