Research Summary

Amorphous graphite is a type of natural graphite that lacks the crystalline structure found in other forms of graphite. It is generally softer and darker in color than crystalline graphite, and is often used in the manufacturing of brake linings and lubricants. Amorphous graphite is formed through the thermal treatment of coal or carbon-rich materials, and is typically found in sedimentary rocks and metamorphic formations. Unlike crystalline graphite, which is chemically and thermally stable, amorphous graphite is more reactive and can be easily oxidized or reduced under certain conditions.

The major global manufacturers of Amorphous Graphite include South Graphite Co., Ltd, Jilin Hanfeng Graphite, Hunan GONSION Graphite, Asbury Carbons, Grafitbergbau Kaisersberg, Karabacak Mining Industry, etc. The global players competition landscape in this report is divided into three tiers.
