Research Summary

Brewing filter paperboard is a filter material specially used in the production process of beer, wine or other alcoholic beverages. These cardboards are usually made from high-quality cellulose fibers with appropriate pore size and thickness to suit different types of brewing equipment, such as beer filters or wine waste filters. The function of the filter paperboard for brewing is to separate suspended particles and sediments from the brewing liquid through the filtration process to obtain clear wine. This helps to improve the quality and taste of the wine, reduce turbidity and off-flavors, and ensure that the finished wine has a good appearance and taste. Choosing the right filter paperboard is critical to the quality and taste of your wine, as they can affect its clarity, brewing efficiency and taste characteristics.
