Research Summary

Calcium Aluminate Cement (CAC) is a specialized type of hydraulic binder that is used in applications where high early strength, durability, and resistance to chemical attack are required. It is made by heating a mixture of limestone and bauxite at high temperatures to create a clinker that is then ground into a fine powder. CAC is a type of cement that contains predominantly calcium aluminate phases (C3A, C12A7, C2AS) and possesses rapid-setting properties. It is used in a variety of construction applications, including refractory concrete, self-leveling flooring, and waterproofing. CAC is also used as a component of blended cement and as an additive to regular cement to improve its performance characteristics. It has a high pH, which means that it can resist acid attacks, making it useful in environments where acid exposure is expected.

The major global manufacturers of Calcium Aluminate Cement include Almatiss, Kerneos, ?imsa, Calucem, Elfusa, Fengrun Metallurgy Material, RWC, Caltra Nederland, Shree Harikrushna Industries, U.S. Electrofused Minerals, Gorka Cement,
